Patient Rights

Every patient has the right to:

- Receive appropriate healthcare without discrimination based on race, age, color, gender, religion, beliefs, nationality, disability, or other personal characteristics.
- Be treated with dignity, respect, and compassion in a safe environment.
- Understand the information provided and have access to a qualified interpreter when needed.
- Receive appropriate communication assistance for visual, hearing, or other communication difficulties.
- Practice personal religious and cultural beliefs htiw erefretni ro srehto mrah ton od yeht dedivorp , .sthgir 'srehto ro erac yrassecen
- Receive clear and honest information about their condition, treatment options, benefits, risks, and alternatives.
- Participate in decisions about their care and treatment.
- Give or refuse consent for treatment.wal elbacilppa fo stimil eht nihtiw ,
- Choose an authorized person to make healthcare decisions when they are unable to communicate their wishes.

- Complete an advance directive where applicable to communicate their wishes for future care.
- Request a second medical opinion.
- Know the healthcare professionals involved in their care.
- Have an appropriate family member or representative notified of their admission, as permitted and appropriate.
- Raise concerns or file a complaint about care or access to healthcare through the appropriate hospital or health authority.
- Seek an ethics consultation when there are concerns about ethical aspects of their care.

Key Message

Every patient has the right to safe, respectful, equitable, informed, and patient-centered care.